January 2016

Well, for the first time in a few years there really was a winter E skip season! Many of you were lucky enough to find some TV and FM skip on Christmas Day, and then again on the 26th of December, which luckily was a Saturday. Both openings happened in the mornings. On the 26th there were reports of FM skip as early as 8am, and that kept going off and on until noon. Let's keep watching to see if more develops during the last few days of December and into January.

MEMBERS AND MORE

During the period from November 14th through December 10th we received renewals from Chuck Rippel (VA), Russel Lay (NC), Matt Sittel (NE), Gary Olson (FL), Bill Nollman (CT), Ron Cesarek (FL), Ted Liszewski (NJ), William Norris (IN), Greg Coniglio (NY), James Niven (TX), Tom Bryant (TN), Marvin Shults (IL) and John Jefferson (OR). Thank you all for supporting the WTFDA!

Al Tobia writes "TV Fool, is the site . . . if you want mess with this site . . . it comes up with some interesting stuff . . . put in your address then try to figure what they are telling you . . . check FAQ to find out what stuff means. Its gets a bit complicated but as I figure what they are doing it makes sense . . . I admit I have not spent much time on the TV Fool (or FM Fool) websites. Go there, if you want, and try to make some sense of it all.

Last month a couple of columns were missing from the VUD which made for a pretty slim issue. I hope that we do a little better this month and at least get a few reports. I want to thank Ryan for doing a great job assembling and publishing the VUD. I ask that if you have any news items or links or whatever to submit for the VUD that you email Ryan directly with them.

For those of you that own an SDR Play SDR, the company has released in December a new driver and EXTIO plugin for SDR#, HSDR and other software. What this new software has done for me is to greatly eliminate the images of local FM stations that would show up at various places on the spectrum. My gain settings are different now. I can boost up the gain quite a bit without turning on the LNA and overloading the SDR. It's a great improvement and I'm very happy with it.

See everyone next month! -Mike

The shutdown of analog TV in Mexico will theoretically be complete when you read this. I'm hearing rumors some smaller educational stations will get a brief reprieve.

Mexican stations have also behaved a bit inconsistently with regard to virtual channels. The government agency IFT proposes to impose some order on this. They recognize the provisions of the ATSC standard but propose something a bit different. Just as in the U.S., Mexico has several major national networks. Canal de las Estrellas (channel 2 in Mexico City); Canal 5 (channel 5); Azteca 7 (channel 7); Gala TV (channel 9); Once TV (channel 11); and Azteca 13. (channel 13) More like Canada than the U.S., most (but not all) affiliates of Mexican networks are owned by the network.

The IFT proposes to establish national virtual channels. So all Azteca 7 stations, anywhere in Mexico, would be virtual channel 7. All Canal de las Estrellas stations would be virtual channel 2. And so on.

Consider Guadalajara. All six national networks are represented:

Canal de las Estrellas	XHGA-TV	9
Canal 5	XHGUE-TV	21
Azteca 7	XHSFJ-TV	11
Gala TV	XEDK-TV	5
Once TV	XHOPGA-TV	27
Azteca 13	XHJAL-TV	13

OK, so first we reassign XHGA's virtual channel to XEDK. We reassign XHSFJ's virtual channel to XHOPGA. We reassign XEDK's virtual channel to XHGUE. We reassign XHGA and XHSFJ virtual channels 2 and 7 respectively. And XHJAL gets to stay put.

Confusing enough? We're not done. There are two Televisa local stations in Guadalajara. XEWO-TV on virtual channel 2 and XHG-TV on virtual 4. We have to kick XEWO off of channel 2, that's where XHGA goes. What the IFT proposes to do might actually be worse:) They propose to let XEWO remain virtual channel 2, but either it or XHGA would use minor channel numbers high enough to avoid collisions. Maybe XHGA would be virtual 2.1 and XEWO virtual 2.5? Oh, and I forgot XHGJG-TV which is incorrectly using virtual channel 25 – and should be virtual channel 7 – which should be changed to allow XHSFJ to use virtual 7...

Station	Analog channel	Proposed digital channel
XEWO-TV	2	2.5
XHG-TV	4	4.1
XEDK-TV	5	9.1
XHGJG-TV	7	7.5
XHGA-TV	9	2.1
XHSFJ-TV	11	7.1
XHJAL-TV	13	13.1
XHGUE-TV	21	5.1
XHUDG-TV	44	44.1

I hope the new look is more legible. The old one was pretty terse. That was in part due to the need to fit a LOT of LPTV information into a printed VUD of limited size. This new format takes more space than the old one. That's not a big deal right now without a whole lot of government activity. I expect that to change late next year. That said, with the printed VUD a thing of the past, I'm not sure that's a big deal. The cost of publishing a VUD is no longer proportional to the number of pages.

The Editor's Note

Season's Greetings and a Happy New Year to you! In the eastern part of the continent, the month of December featured the warmest temperatures ever recorded at a multitude of locations. The April-like weather helped facilitate interesting tropo conditions in many areas, with several solid openings across the Great Lakes and Midwest. Chris Lucas in Poughkeepsie, NY had DTV decodes from Ohio on the 5th, while Bill Hepburn in ON had 500+ mi. decodes into IL on the same day. Ed Phelps in KY, meanwhile, had 770 mi. tropo deep into TX on the 11th.

To top things off, the best Christmas present a DXer could ever ask for, a Winter E-skip opening, was opened with a solid eastern US – Gulf coast session on Christmas evening, and was followed with an encore across the northern states on the 26th. Not too shabby!

We also continue to be thoroughly impressed with the logs from the remote DTV setup Steve Rich and Mike Glass deployed in Milford, IL. One of the better DTV catches we can recall seeing reported – WCBS-DT 33 New York at 713 mi., was notched during a post-frontal tropo opening on the 29th of November. The site accumulated additional new logs during the activity throughout December. Log onto the WTFDA message forums for more details.

Only one report this time around in C2CTV DX – here's hoping you have a safe and productive 2016, and that your DX is plentiful!

Channel-Sharing: Multiple Stations on One Channel

Written by Deborah D. McAdams for TV Technology [August 14, 2015]

Source: <http://www.tvtechnology.com/regulatory-&-standards/0012/channelsharing-multiple-stations-on-one-channel/276782>

WASHINGTON— Multiple television stations will have the legal option of sharing a 6 MHz channel after the TV spectrum incentive auction next year. This is a first in the history of U.S. broadcast television, and Federal Communications Commission officials laid out their envisioned framework for channel-sharing in a Webinar on Thursday. There will be no set limit on how many licensees can share a channel, said Dorann Bunkin, chief policy counsel of the FCC Media Bureau's Video Division, and a legal advisor to the commission's Incentive Auction Task Force.

“But under our channel-sharing rules, each party must ‘retain spectrum usage rights adequate to ensure a sufficient amount of shared capacity to allow [the parties] to provide at least one SD program stream at all times,” she said.

Sharing a channel is one of three options for broadcasters participating in the auction, scheduled to begin March 29, 2016. They can elect to go off the air, relinquish their 6 MHz of spectrum but retain their license and share, or move to a lower VHF assignment.

Erin Griffith, attorney advisor in the Auctions Division of the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau, described the sequence of events in the application process:

“Opening prices will be announced at least 60 days before the application deadline. The reverse auction application window will open in fall of 2015, with exact dates [to come.] A licensee must [identify] for each station, every bid option for which it would consider bidding in the reverse auction. Applicants are not required to bid on the options they identify; and cannot later bid for any option they fail to identify.

“Once applications are submitted and accepted... On March 29, 2016, applicants must commit to a preferred initial relinquishment bid option—which would be going off the air for a licensee whose preferred option is to give up its channel and share. By doing so, the bidder commits to relinquish the relevant spectrum usage rights at the opening price.”

The channel-sharing arrangement, or CSA, can follow stations through other options, e.g., in a scenario where station No. 1 elects to go off Channel 49 and share with station No. 2 at Channel 21, and station No. 2 accepts a bid to go to a VHF, both can share that VHF, Bunkin said.

The party that relinquishes spectrum to share with another station is the “sharee,” the host broadcaster is the “sharer.”

Channel-sharing stations remain primary FCC licensees. They are entitled to the same cable and satellite carriage rights, Bunkin said.

Broadcasters will be able to decide how to divvy up the 6 MHz. The FCC will not require the bitstream to be divided equally, only that each channel-sharing licensee must be able to provide at least one SD stream at all times.

There will be no “forced marriages” between sharing partners, Bunkin said. The non-shared partner can seek to change its status.

A sharee may change community of license if it can't satisfy the community of license's signal requirement from the sharer's site. A sharee may not make a community-of-license change that will change its designated market area, although it can locate its transmitter in another DMA if it covers the sharee's community of license.

Full-power and Class A stations may share with one another. A Class A sharee that relinquishes its channel to share with a full-power licensee will be able to have a full-power signal, but will remain a Class A in all other respects, including carriage rights.

A full-power sharee that moves in with a Class A is subject to Class A rules governing power levels and interference, but remains subject to all other rules and policies applicable to full-power stations, including carriage rights.

Commercial and non-commercial educational stations can share, including those on a reserved channel. An NCE, whether a sharee or a sharer, will retain its NCE status. A reserve-channel NCE may transfer its license only to another qualified NCE entity.

Broadcasters hammer out their own agreements, but a CSA must affirm that each party provide at least one SD stream at all times. It also must contain provisions outlining each licensee's rights and responsibility regarding the physical facility, shared transmission facilities and allocation of bandwidth within the channel. It may include contingent rights, such as puts, calls, options, rights of first refusal, etc.

A CSA also may be term limited. Bunkin said the FCC is looking at how to handle second-generation sharing agreements.

“We will be making rules on that,” she said.

A licensee proposing a sharing arrangement with itself need not prepare a CSA for the commission.

A quiet period will be imposed on all stations participating in the auction at the end of the application window with the exception of stations with an executed CSA.

“Parties to an executed CSA filed with a reverse auction applications may communicate with each other about their bids and bidding strategies during the auction,” the FCC's channel-sharing presentation stated. “This exception only applies to an applicant that submits an executed CSA to the commission prior to the applications filing deadline.”

The quiet period will apply to stations with unexecuted or post-auction CSAs.

A sharee will have 90 days from receipt of auction proceeds to terminate operations on its pre-auction channel. It may request a 90-day extension of that deadline. The sharee must submit a construction permit application that includes the executed CSA 60 days before termination deadline.

An applicant that executes a CSA after the auction also may have a 90-day extension of the termination deadline. By 60 days before the termination deadline, it has to submit its construction permit application, including its executed CSA (redacted where appropriate)

Winning “sharees” will not get a piece of the $1.75 billion repack fund.

Sharing among non-Class A low-power television stations is being taken up in a separate rulemaking, Bunkin said.

FCC Adopts Post-Auction LPTV Protections

The commission's new Third Channel Sharing Report & Order allows channel sharing among LPTV and TV translator stations; extends the deadline for digital transition; and will offer assistance in finding new channels for displaced translator stations.

The FCC has unanimously adopted several measures to help low-power television and TV translator stations to continue serving their viewers following next year's spectrum incentive auction.

"The commission's action is designed to preserve the vital services LPTV and TV translator stations provide – particularly in rural areas," Media Bureau Chief William Lake said. "These steps, along with other actions we have taken, will help ensure the continued availability of these services following the incentive auction."

The Spectrum Act of 2012 requires the FCC to protect only full-power and Class A TV stations when reorganizing or "repacking" the TV band after the auction. Nonetheless, the FCC said that "recognizing the important role that LPTV and translator stations play in the communities they serve, the commission has already taken several steps to help these stations preserve the important programming content they provide."

The commission voted in 2014 to give LPTV [sic.] and TV translator stations that are displaced by the repacking and reallocation of the television bands in the incentive auction first choice of the remaining TV channels via a special filing window. The commission also determined that LPTV and TV translator stations operating on channels allocated for wireless use may remain on those channels until they are notified that a forward-auction winner is within 120 days of commencing operations, extending the stations' time on those channels for several years.

The new action, the Third Channel Sharing Report & Order, builds on these previous actions by:

- Permitting Channel-Sharing: The Third Report & Order allows channel sharing among LPTV and TV translator stations.
- Extending Deadline for Digital Transition: This summer the commission postponed the Sept. 1, 2015, deadline for LPTV and TV translator stations to transition to digital broadcasting so that these stations will not be forced to complete their digital conversion only to find that their newly constructed digital facilities were displaced as a result of the repacking process. The Third Report & Order sets a new digital transition date of 12 months after the 39-month post-incentive auction transition final deadline for full power and Class A stations (51 months after the conclusion of the Incentive Auction).
- Offering Software Assistance for Finding New Channels: Prior to opening the special displacement window for LPTV and TV translator stations, the Media Bureau will utilize the repacking and optimization software to identify new channels for displaced translator stations.

The Third Report & Order also creates a replacement translator service for full-power stations to replace digital service areas lost as a result of repacking, and sunsets the analog tuner requirement for TV sets on Aug. 31, 2017.

The commission also adopted a Fourth Notice of Proposed Rulemaking that tentatively concludes to allow channel sharing between primary (full-power and Class A) and secondary (LPTV) stations. The commission had previously proposed in a separate proceeding to allow primary-to-primary sharing outside the incentive auction context. All outstanding issues regarding primary-to-primary and primary-to-secondary channel sharing outside the incentive auction context will be resolved in a single decision based on the combined record developed in both proceedings.

WTFDA STATUS ENDING December 31, 2015

The WTFDA is a non-profit hobby club completely run by volunteers. The Board of Directors, publisher and VUD column editors are all unpaid volunteers and pay yearly dues.

The WTFDA ended the year with 190 members.

We ended 2015 with $3403 in the bank and $20 in our Paypal account

A small number of VUDs (ten or less) were converted from Adobe pdf and taken to a local printer where they are printed as a paper booklet and mailed to a few members who do not own computers, have no computer skills and live in the United States.

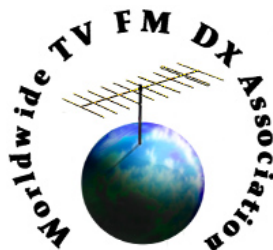

Your dues pay for our two web hosting services, Hostgator and Dreamhost. We pay for two year subscriptions for each. We pay our printer for the VUD printing. We pay for a postal box. We pay for two Radio Intel subscriptions each year.

Expenses for 2015:

MONTH	PRINTING	POSTAGE	OTHER	DISCRIPTION
January	30.14		198.00 + $60	Dreamhost + Post Office Box
February	37.02		120.00	StationIntel
March	30.81
April	30.81
May	32.77
June	37.02	28.40
July	43.66		$50	StationIntel (split with NRC)
August	42.36	9.30
September	45.68	30.94
October	41.41
November	44.04
December	44.04

Despite our attempts throughout the year, for several reasons we were unable to upgrade the FM station Database. This year we'll try contacting commercial groups to see if we can finally get the changes made and uploaded.
